A YARDMASTER'S CREED

I will observe the rules and requirements of the company by which I am employed as a supervisory officer and will perform all duties required of me to the best of my ability.

I will consider the personal feelings of those who are working under my jurisdiction and treat them with the same respect that I would expect them to extend to me. I need their confidence and friendship in order to properly discharge my duties. Friendship properly cemented between us, is, to my mind, the keynote to mutual success.

I will carefully examine and study all existing agreements between the company and the different labor organizations and inviolately respect them in the same manner which I will expect their different members to observe and live up to the rules of the company and will also expect them to keep themselves familiarized with all special rules embodied in current time cards and bulletin boards.

I will not send any person to do a job I would consider unsafe for me to do myself. I will always remember "safety-first" and will require all those who come under my jurisdiction to do likewise.

I will at regular intervals have safety-first meetings held in my territory and will invite other departments to send along representatives so that we may all be in close touch with working conditions in every portion of the territory that we may have duties to perform.

I will always be courteous to my superior officers and to all whom I may come in daily contact with; at all times avoiding the use of harsh words that may wound the feelings of those to whom they were addressed; a word once spoken can never be recalled, no matter how badly the speaker may desire to do so.

Let us all live this life of ours in such a manner that when we reach the end of the road we may be able to say, "I am going home, happy in the knowledge that I have knowingly wronged no neighbor of mine."—Alex Neilson, Lodge 322.
