NAMED PASSENGER TRAINS

OPERATED ON THE RAILROADS OF THE UNITED STATES, CANADA AND MEXICO

All railroad passenger trains have numbers, but many of them also have names. Through these names trains acquire personalities and thus many of them become famous throughout the land.

Trains are named for such things as times, places, events and people. More trains are named for people than anything else. Historical figures, authors, statesmen, romantic adventurers—these and others come in for honors. Cities, states, territories, scenic areas and other geographic designations have been given recognition. Trains have been named also for birds, horses, flowers, fruits and trees.

Sometimes railroads select names for their trains from entries submitted in contests. Passengers frequently volunteer suggestions. The names chosen usually have some relation to the railroad's history, the territory it serves, the route it travels or the nature of its service.

*Note: The term "Steam;Elect." used on this and succeeding pages indicates that trains so designated are operated by steam power except in certain electrified zones, principally between New York and Washington and between Philadelphia and Harrisburg on the Pennsylvania Railroad; west of Salisbury Plains and Babylon on the Long Island Railroad; between New York and Harmon and between New York and White Plains on the New York Central Railroad; between New York and New Haven on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad; between Harlowton and Avery, between Othello and Seattle and between Black River Junction and Tacoma on the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad; and between Skykomish and Wenatchee on the Great Northern Railroad. All Illinois Terminal Railroad trains listed are operated electrically. In addition to those indicated in the list, all through passenger trains at the Cleveland, Ohio, terminal and some east-bound Baltimore and Ohio Railroad trains at Baltimore Tunnel are operated electrically. Trains of the Lehigh Valley Railroad from Pennsylvania Station, New York City, use electric locomotives of the Pennsylvania Railroad to Meeker Avenue Station, Newark.
