IT'S MEXICO

A sunlit, smiling care-free land, with a hint of Everywhere. Water as brilliant as the Mediterranean, mountain air as pure as in the Alps . . .

Where every corner beckons you to turn it . . . and life bewitches . . . A land of the dim past and the bright tomorrow . . . refreshing vacation land of today. A happy land.

MEXICO IN SUMMER

A million and a half American visitors traveled to Mexico in the course of last year, and more are expected this year, which is no wonder, since Mexico is the ideal vacation land from the viewpoint of climate, color, proximity and rate of exchange. As regards climate, in Mexico City and along the high central plateau, which is Mexico's "travel belt," far from being hot, in the summer months, it is temperate and forever cool and refreshing.

Along toward the end of June and early July several thousand teachers and students from all parts of the United States and Canada will arrive in Mexico to enroll for courses in the Summer Schools at Mexico City, Guadalajara, Puebla, or San Miguel Allende. Each summer curriculums are markedly altered to correspond to the demands of increasing study of the culture and language of Mexico.

Every tourist is a discoverer of Mexico. It has an infinity of faces. Change only brings more vivid contrast. A few miles in almost any direction from the shining Capital are little old Spanish towns, mounds with forgotten Indian cities under them, pyramids, ageless villages whose steep streets come to dead-ends in the sky.

Those who have seen Mexico City, Guadalajara, Guanajuato, Pátzcuaro, Puebla, Oaxaca, San Miguel Allende, Tasco, Veracruz . . . all the beguiling towns tourists most often visit—have only begun to know the country. Mexico is all things to all men.

GO TO MEXICO BY RAIL FOR THE FUN OF IT!

"Have fun as you go" is a new travel concept to a large number of visitors to Mexico who prefer to travel by rail. Besides, the trip costs less, and the one-day journey from the border makes an exhilarating overture to the thrill of being in a land of many vacation lands—truly a masterpiece of geographical condensation. Within its borders, thriving in a modern nation, are many self-contained worlds. Each has its own color and culture, its special art and architecture, its unique life and laughter.

It is easy to make connections for Mexico from any city in the United States. The three principal rail gateways are Laredo, El Paso and Nogales. Through the first of these the "Aztec Eagle"—"Texas Eagle" north of San Antonio—is operated daily from St. Louis, Missouri, to Mexico City. To insure on-time arrivals a new fleet of Diesel engines shuttles between the border and the capital.

The "Aztec Eagle" carries up-to-date, air-conditioned sleepers, dining and lounge-observation cars, and the general standard of service is fairly equal to that of the American railways.

The traveler has a real scenic treat the moment he rolls across the border—formalities are simple and are soon over, and Mexico unfolds its endless plains dotted with Indian villages, changing lights and colors on the silent mountains. From Nuevo Laredo the route runs direct to Monterrey, a thriving industrial center with its spacious, comfortable hotels. Here the Pan-American highway continues due south, but the railway branches west to tap the mining and manufacturing districts in the northern provinces. Three-and-a-half-hours from Monterrey the train glides into Saltillo, famous for its gaily-colored sarapes. It is a pleasant town, hedged about by orchards of pears and quinces, and is well-provided with first-class hotels.

The next stop is San Luis Potosi, an old mining center with fascinating architecture and a balmy climate. Soon after passing the town of Dolores Hidalgo, cradle of the Mexican independence movement, the train enters the grain-growing Bajío country, the great loamy plain of central Mexico, with its sombre skies and translucent lakes.

San Miguel de Allende, a charming and unusually well-preserved Colonial town, is well worth breaking the journey to see. The International School of Fine Arts attracts students from all parts of the United States. San Miguel's quiet little plaza, whose silence is broken only by the mellow ringing of church bells, is a haven for artists and retired Americans, many of whom have remodeled the former residences of wealthy hacendados into winter retreats.

Further on is Querétaro, the historic city where the Mexican constitution was signed. Opals are sold alongside the train, while the town itself is pleasant and attractive, containing the Convent of Santa Rosa de Viterbo, which is largely the work of the great Mexican architect Tresguerras. It is highly ornamented and daringly original. The Convent Church of Santa Clara, also reconstructed by Tresguerras, has tower and dome of glazed tile, and the interior is richly decorated. The Federal Palace is Mooresque, and contains a small, charming museum. Everybody goes to the Hill of Bells (which has a small chapel in the memory of Maximilian, and a fine view over the city and valley) and to the great aqueduct, with its seventy-four marvelous arches framing the landscape.

Eventually the train draws into Buenavista Grand Central Station in the heart of Mexico City—it is a brand new station completely modern in design and equipped with every possible convenience for travelers and for the rapid handling of luggage. The ribbons of rail of the "Aztec Eagle" route which stretch south from the U.S. border to Mexico City span tablelands and valleys traversing in all some 800 miles of matchless scenic splendor. Different views, no less spectacular, will unfold before the eyes of the train traveler making the return journey via the El Paso route.

Returning to Querétaro, the line swings to Irapuato, famous for its all-year-round delicious strawberries, and thence to Silao, the market for curious inlaid boxes and quaint toys. From here Guanajuato may be reached on a branch line, an hour away and in comfortable Pullman sleeper from Mexico City. On Guanajuato's outskirts is the famous cemetery where mummies, exhumed bodies which the dry mountain air has preserved for centuries, are buried above ground. Guanajuato was once the richest city in the Spanish Americas, a fabulous silver and gold-mining capital. It is situated in a mountain cleft, with the main avenue down the center, and all the other streets winding upward on either side. Most of the streets are no more than crooked narrow lanes, some with steps rather than an even grade. Little parks and squares dot Guanajuato, and new beauties are revealed at every turn in the cobbled ways.

The itinerary also includes Aguascalientes, named for its therapeutic springs; Zacatecas once a mining center of the old Colonial days. This is a vast section of modern Mexico, for Torreon's cotton mills, factories and smelters are not more than sixty years old; Chihuahua, further north, is the country of the legendary Pancho Villa, that vastly picturesque character who was a moving spirit in the great 1910 Revolution. The country here looks much like that of Texas, which in fact, is soon entered by way of the Ciudad Juárez-El Paso gateway. These two routes offer almost unlimited invitations to the tourist to break his journey if time permits, and are yet only a part of the attractions which Mexico has to offer.

On the west coast, train travel means entering Mexico via Tucson, Arizona, and Nogales, with a possible stopover at Hermosillo, or at the luxurious fishing resort of Guaymas. From there the line drops into rich and varied tropical scenery to the enchanting port of Mazatlán, then along to Guadalajara and the great calm lake of Chapala, thence into Bajío country, to join the other entry lines at Querétaro.

It is only overnight from Guadalajara to Mexico City. In the early morning you find that your train has entered the storied Valley of Mexico, which in past old times was the Kingdom of Moctezuma. Mexico lies in a great valley, surrounded by rugged craters of extinct volcanoes and guarded, in the southeast, by the snow-capped peaks of Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl. The great plaza or Zócalo, built over Moctezuma's temple, is the heart of the city. There is the domed and towered cathedral; Monte de Piedad (the National Pawnshop) a museum in itself; the block-long National Palace with its Museum, endless courtyards, historically-furnished chambers, and Diego Rivera murals; the Municipal Palace or City Hall; the Supreme Court of Justice, with frescoes of Orozco. All of these buildings are of great architectural interest. A cosmopolitan city, Mexico offers all the hotel and entertainment facilities of a major world capital. It is a city of broad boulevards, parks, gardens, handsome residences and show places. Here it is that the visitor captures almost at a glance Mexico's contrasting facets—the Spanish Colonial, the French renaissance and streamlined ultra-modern. The metropolis was erected on the very site of the Aztec capital.

And within Mexico itself—the tourist belt—the railroads can satisfy all your sightseeing desires. They can take you to off-the-beaten-track towns, to see coastal resorts, wonderful spas, the tangled jungles of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, down to the border of Guatemala, or the southern reaches of Mexico's deep south that became available with the tri-weekly sleeping car service between Mexico City and Mérida, in the Yucatán peninsula, that sticks out eastward forming, with sand and palm, the southern boundary of the Gulf of Mexico. This land is strewn with probably the finest collection of discovered Mayan ruins, like Palenque, Uxmal, and Chichen Itza, and undiscovered buried cities that any country can boast.

THE NATIONAL RAILWAYS OF MEXICO offers you these side-trips from Mexico City, that combine comfort, relaxation and recreation

The "Atlantes."—Toltec civilization, archeological zone of Tula, State of Hidalgo.

The average visitor will wish to make Mexico City his base of operation for such side trips since it is one of the gayest metropolises of the continent. In the luxurious night clubs and country clubs, at the bull fights and horse races, you may rub shoulders with the great artists and writers, and industrialists, big and small from all over the world who are inclined like you to forget business to enjoy Mexico.

A nearby trip a few hours away:

PUEBLA: . . .

Dominating the plaza and the city is the seventeenth century Cathedral with its great green-gold dome and interior lavishly decorated with marble, onyx and gold leaf. Other buildings of special interest in Puebla are the Secret Convent of Santa Monica, the Casa del Alfeñique and the Casa de los Muñecos. Here you can buy gorgeous tiles, fine glassware and the historic Talavera pottery. (The National Railways of Mexico operates now a most modern diesel coach, air-conditioned with reclining seats that will take you there in three hours. Rate 92¢ each way. See table 27-a.)

Overnight tours:

GUADALAJARA

Second city of the country, Guadalajara makes a delightful side trip from Mexico City, in air-conditioned Pullmans and in deluxe accommodations. It is a bustling, modern city in many ways—yet you will discover splendid colonial cathedrals, and you will ride around its streets in horse-drawn carriages. Nowhere will you see a finer market, filled with all kinds of pottery; here the emphasis is on bird and flower patterns, generally on a cream or tan background. Glassware of striking design, and hide-covered furniture are two of the other crafts developed by this city. A gentleness pervades the great market places and even the busy arcades crowded with stores. Guadalajara's tiled walks are made for strolling, her parks for contemplation. One-way rail fare $4.02. Pullman: Lower $3.00; upper $2.40; single roomette $4.19; double bedroom $5.99; compartment $8.38; drawing room $11.37. (See tables G and 15.)

GUANAJUATO AND SAN MIGUEL ALLENDE

Guanajuato, that old and picturesque town is linked to Mexico City by an overnight pullman sleeper (see tables L and 12). Lying in a deep mountain crevice, the regal old houses with their balconies crowd out into the narrow cobbled streets, so that the roof tops seem to touch one another. Guanajuato offers you the splendor of its typical architecture. Once the richest mining center of the Americas, today it lives in the past giving its visitors the opportunity to be transported into the old Spanish days. San Miguel Allende is a Colonial town discovered two decades ago by American visitors. Its background of centuries of legend no less than its intimate quality of life have made it the favorite haunt of artists and writers. Here the seminar of the Escuela de Bellas Artes is held semiannually and offers courses in various forms of art and decoration under the tutelage of masters from Mexico and the United States. Close by is the Spa of Taboada with its health-giving thermal waters. San Miguel Allende is easily reached from Guanajuato through a good paved road or directly from Mexico City on the Aztec Eagle trains Nos. 1 and 2. One-way rail fare to Guanajuato $2.68. Pullman: Single roomette $2.86; double bedroom $4.08; compartment $5.72. To San Miguel Allende, rail fare $2.16. Pullman seat $1.20. (See tables A and 1.)

PATZCUARO AND URUAPAN

These are two of the most delightful tours in Mexico, one of them a quaint fishing village on an azure lake, the other a semi-tropical town set in the lushness of gardens and banana plantations. At Patzcuaro you will photograph the hardy Tarascan Indians, who daily sail out onto the lake in their crude boats, returning in the evening with their catch. At Uruapan you will walk along rushing streams and stop to admire waterfalls and jungle flowers. Here, too, you may buy the famous lacquer bowls. And in both Patzcuaro and Uruapan you will come to know something of rural Mexico, of its simplicity, and of its still primitive ways of tilling the fertile soil. One-way rail fare to Patzcuaro $1.94. Pullman: Lower $2.19; upper $1.75; drawing room $8.30. To Uruapan, rail fare $2.45. Pullman: Lower $2.56; upper $2.05; drawing room $9.73. (See tables 1 and 16).

VERACRUZ

Veracruz is Mexico's principal seaport. It offers a wealth of historical lore, its grim fortress of San Juan de Ulua, and other remnants of ancient days remind the visitor that in this port town Cortes first set foot in the New World and it continues to remain the most Spanish of all Mexican cities. At dusk the open-air cafes skirting the town's main plaza are the meeting place of gay Veracruzanos. In the blue waters and sandy beaches of the Gulf of Mexico there are all facilities for fishing, swimming and a restful holiday. One-way rail fare $2.34. Pullman: Lower $2.19; upper $1.75; double bedroom $4.37. (See tables F and 25).

OAXACA

Oaxaca is a city of seventy thousand friendly persons who enjoy making visitors feel at home. It is the center of a region which includes some of Mexico's finest pre-Spanish remains and numerous simple Indian villages which specialize in beautiful handicrafts. It is a pleasure to stroll past Colonial houses decorated with delicate ironwork, to take a look at Santo Domingo, which is considered among the two or three finest examples of church art in Mexico. Here also are the amazing ruins of a former civilization, at Mitla and Monte Alban. From the latter have come a collection of jewelry made of gold and precious stones. These treasures are exhibited at the local museum. One-way rail fare $2.93. Pullman: Single roomette $4.01; double bedroom $5.72; compartment $8.01. (See tables J and 23).

FORTIN, CORDOBA AND ORIZABA

Fortin is a veritable flower garden where you swim in pools covered with gardenias and where orchids are a peso apiece. Further afield is Orizaba that affords one of the most striking contrasts of snow and tropic foliage. Above the camellias and the flowers rises the white-crested highest mountain in Mexico, the Pico de Orizaba. In the opposite direction lies Cordoba where the houses still have iron-barred windows, wooden balconies and massive doors studded with hand-wrought copper nails. In the environs are pineapple and coffee plantations. One-way rail fare to Fortin $1.82. Pullman: Lower $2.02; upper $1.62; double bedroom $4.04; compartment $5.65; drawing room $7.66. One-way rail fare to Córdoba $1.87; to Orizaba $1.72. Pullman to both: Lower $2.02; upper $1.62; drawing room $7.66. (See tables F and 25).

MONTERREY

Monterrey is a thriving industrial city and Mexico's most progressive manufacturing center, with nearly 700 thousand inhabitants. The city has a dramatic appeal and there is much to see—the Cathedral on the Plaza Zaragoza, El Obispado (Bishop's Palace) built in 1736 and now a historic museum. From here there is a spectacular view of the city and the Saddle Mountain. Visitors are welcome to the factories and in particular for a conducted tour of the brewery. Nearby are the Chipinque Mesa (Dude Ranch) high up in the wooded mountains, the Horsetail Falls and the Juajuco and Estanzuela Canyons. Only 15 hours by fast, all-Pullman train—El Regiomontano—from and to Mexico City. You leave either end at 6 p.m. and arrive at the other at 9 a.m., well-rested and refreshed after a good night's sleep. One-way fares. Rail: $6.59. Pullman: Lower $4.77; upper $3.82; single roomette $6.67; double bedroom $9.53; compartment $13.34; drawing room $18.11. (See tables A and 1).

Round-trip fares to all these places -both rail and Pullman -are twice as much as those shown for one-way trips.

A WORD TO THE TRAVELER

AS FOR CLOTHES . . .

Travel light. Two or three handbags should suffice for the ordinary trip. If you expect to visit any of the seacoast resorts or the tropics take lightweight summer clothing and a lightweight topcoat. Otherwise, Spring or Fall clothes are good all year in Mexico. Important items in the female wardrobe are at least one suit, several blouses, one dark silk dress, a lightweight wool, a print dress, two or three washable dresses, and in-between season coat. For walking on those cobbled village roads, be sure to take along a pair of walking shoes. Any unexpected wardrobe lacks can be supplied by the well-stocked Mexican stores.

ENTRY RULES . . .

You may bring any reasonable amount of personal clothing and jewelry, together with a camera and similar articles for your own use. Returning to the States, these same personal effects are duty-free, as well as one hundred dollars worth of merchandise bought as souvenirs.

CLIMATE . . .

In Mexico City the days are usually mild and the nights delightfully cool, with the temperature ranging from 35° F., with a mean temperature of 65° F.

One of the new look constructions in Mexico City. The 44-story "Latino Tower" next to the Palace of Fine Arts.

Other Towns . . .

Cool Country: Guanajuato, Pachuca, Pátzcuaro, Puebla, Teotihuacan, Toluca, and Zacatecas are in the cool country, which ranges upward from 6,500 feet, where the average temperature is from 59° F. to 62° F., with slight changes, except in winter. Then it may go down to 30° F. or 40° F.

Temperate Country: At the lower altitude is the temperate country, which ranges from 3,000 feet to 6,500 feet. Located in this region are: Chihuahua, Cuernavaca, Fortín, Guadalajara, Morelia, Oaxaca, Orizaba, Querétaro, Saltillo, San Luis Potosí, San Miguel Allende, Tasco, Tehuacan and Uruapan. The average yearly temperature is from 62° F. to 77° F., with little variation. Many health resorts are located here, as the dry, clear air is exhilarating and beneficial.

Warm Country: Acapulco, Coatzacoalcos, Colima, Córdoba, Guaymas, Mazatlán, Mérida, Monterrey, Manzanillo, Tampico and Veracruz are in the warm country, which begins at sea level and extends upward to an altitude of 3,000 feet. The average yearly temperature ranges from 77° F. to 88° F., sometimes rising to as much as 105° F. The winter climate (December to February) is comparable to early May days in central U.S.A., while in summer a cool land breeze blows seaward in the morning and returns at nightfall.

FOOD AND DRINK . . .

The finest food for every mood is available in Mexico City, which has some of the best restaurants on the continent. These are restaurants that specialize in native foods and those which specialize in thick steaks, hamburgers and American coffee. Be sure to try the superb local coffee, hot chocolate and rolls of which there are an enormous variety, as well as flan, the typical custard dessert served with vanilla sauce. Tropical fruits and vegetables, as papaya, mango, avocado pears, and chayote are particularly delicious and appeal to American tastes. Good drinking water is supplied almost everywhere; it may be supplemented by bottled mineral waters, excellent Mexican beer or soft drinks. Good native wines are abundant and are inexpensive.

HEALTH PRECAUTIONS . . .

Just remember, in going from sea level to the high altitude in Mexico City (7,349 ft.) to take it a bit easy the first two or three days and perhaps adopt the Mexican custom of a heavy mid-day meal and a light supper.

TIPPING . . .

Don't undertip, but don't overtip except for service beyond the call of duty. At the airport or railroad station, give the porter one peso per bag. Hotel bellboys might be given one peso per bag, and chambermaids one peso per day. Ten to fifteen percent is an adequate tip for a waiter, the equivalent of 2 pesos at breakfast, 3 pesos at luncheon and 4 pesos at dinner. Pay taxi drivers what the meter reads. A courier who meets you at the airport or station deserves 5 pesos, and a driver-guide for two people, 15-25 pesos per day, according to services performed.

MARKETS . . .

Any or all of THREE of the city's multitude of teeming MARKETS are worth seeing. SAN JUAN MARKET contains a novel basket market, as well as fruit, flower, meat and fish markets. The LA MERCED MARKET, recently rebuilt, probably is the world's biggest market under one roof—a square half mile or more of muted Mexican noise and color, complete with snack bars and strolling musicians. The LAGUNILLA MARKET, where you can bargain for everything from worn door knobs and odd shoes to precision tools, recently has been moved indoors, into four modern, adjoining buildings. Sunday morning is the best time to see it.

Travel to Mexico by the National Railways of Mexico which is the most economical and dependable way

The best advice is to buy round-trip tickets well in advance. (At your local ticket office or nearest National Railways' agency you can obtain up-to-date train schedules, passenger rates and informative travel literature). Especially it is important to secure Pullman space early all the way to Mexican point of destination. Pullman accommodations for the return journey should be procured as soon as the traveler reaches Mexico. (Unless you have been protected in advance).

Reduced fares Family Plan. Family plan tickets to El Paso, Texas, opposite Ciudad Juarez or Laredo, Texas can be combined with fares from those points to destinations in Mexico with considerable saving in through price.

Suggested side-trips from San Antonio to Mexico City. Now as low for the round-trip as $30.35 coach or $33.15 first-class via Laredo both ways, or $30.28 first-class one-way via Laredo with return to Ciudad Juarez (opposite El Paso) or vice-versa. Double bedroom from San Antonio to Mexico City, one way $30.14. Roomette, one-way $18.17.

First-class passenger rates and Pullman fares are surprisingly low. From Laredo, Tex. to Mexico City (803 miles) first-class rate is $10.10, lower pullman berth $7.20; upper $6.04. From Nuevo Laredo, rail fare $8.36. Lower berth $5.80; upper $4.64.

From Ciudad Juarez, opposite El Paso, Tex. (1225 miles) first-class rate is $13.01, lower pullman berth $8.41; upper $6.73; drawing room $31.96.

Round-trip rates are twice as much.

Hotel reservations. They should be made well in advance, particularly in Mexico City, Acapulco and the more popular resorts. If you find yourself without accommodations in Mexico City, apply at the bureau of the Mexican Hotel Association located for your convenience at Buenavista Grand Central Station where you will arrive. Tel. 47-3301.

Between 12:01 P.M. and 12:00 o'clock midnight, inclusive, by darkface type. Central Standard Time is observed throughout the entire system of the National Railways of Mexico. The time in Mexico is reckoned from 1 hour to 24 hours. 8:10 A.M. is 8 Hrs. 10 Min. To compute P.M. time add 12 to the hour desired. For instance 5:30 P.M. is 17 Hrs. 30 Min; 8:20 P.M. is 20 Hrs. 20 Min. and so on until midnight which is zero hours. 11:59 P.M. is 23 Hrs. 59 Min. 12 noon is just 12 Hrs.

Tickets. As there is only one class of through fares in Mexico, international tickets sold at coach fares will be honored on the National Railways of Mexico for first-class passage in parlor, sleeping cars or reserved seat coaches upon payment of usual charge for space occupied. Exception: On diesel coaches, Trains X-1 to X-8 (AUTOVIAS) operated between Mexico City and Puebla, through tickets are accepted at no additional charge although advance seat reservations are required.

Adjustment of fares. Should any misunderstanding arise with conductors, train auditors, or ticket agents, pay the fare requested, secure a receipt and send it to Mr. O. Gutiérrez de Velasco, Chief Passenger Traffic Department, National Railways of Mexico, Buenavista Grand Central Station, Mexico City 3, D. F.

Redemption of tickets. Unused or partly used tickets of this company's issue will be redeemed under tariff regulations. Communicate with Mr. O. Gutiérrez de Velasco, Chief Passenger Traffic Department, at the address indicated in the preceding paragraph.

Application for refund account through tickets to Mexico destinations purchased in the United States or Canada, not used or partly used for passage, should be filed with proper passenger traffic official of issuing line.

Loss of tickets. Passengers should guard against such loss, as railroads are not responsible.

Children. Under five years of age, free, when accompanied by parent or guardian; five years of age and under twelve, one-half fare; twelve years of age and over, full fare.

Stopovers. Are permitted at any point en route within limit of through ticket. Passengers should notify ticket agent or train auditor.

Air-conditioned equipment. Pullman sleepers, dining cars, club cars, lounge-observation coaches, reserved seat coaches (when especially chartered), and diesel-coaches (Autovías), are air-conditioned.

Assignment of Pullman space or reserved seats from stations other than those from which passengers board trains. When Pullman accommodations or reserved seats are requested from a station that has no regularly assigned space for sale, or that such space has been sold out, corresponding rail and sleeping car, or reserved seat fares will be assessed from point from which reservation is made.

Checking of baggage. Passengers who desire to take advantage of checking facilities available, please take note that baggage destined to Mexico should be checked only to El Paso, Tex., or to Nuevo Laredo, Tam. (Mexico) and be forwarded from point of origin not less than 48 hours prior to the departure of the passenger, inasmuch as baggage is inspected and re-checked at the border to the final destination. When the baggage does not reach the border ahead of the passengers, they have to stay over to attend to it themselves. Otherwise the keys and claim checks may be left with the general agent of the National Railways in Laredo, Tex., Mr. L. Navarro, who will do the re-checking to the destination in Mexico, without assuming any responsibility. All expenses incurred for releasing, transferring across the border and re-checking of baggage will be borne by passenger. Likewise baggage from points in Mexico destined to points in the United States or Canada should be checked to Ciudad Juarez, Chih. (opposite El Paso, Tex.) or Laredo, Tex.

Baggage allowance. In connection with through tickets there is a free allowance of 150 pounds for each adult passenger and 75 pounds for each child traveling on a half-fare ticket.
