SAN FRANCISCO
AS A
SUMMER RESORT

San Francisco is, both to the Eastern visitor and the Californian, a place of high popularity in the summer months. Its unequalled climate—neither hot nor cold, warm sunshine tempered by soft sea breezes, has much to do with the attraction that draws people every year from the interior valleys, from Oregon, Nevada, Utah, Arizona and Colorado. Fifty-eight degrees for an average temperature in July, seventy-four the highest point in August—temptation enough for sun-blistered heat-ridden sufferers.

Then, too, the cosmopolitan city, this Paris of Western America, holds many promises for the pleasure seeker and fulfills them. Here are the wonderful harbor, with its warships and craft of every rig and nation, a hundred nearby morning-to-evening trips to sights of mountain, sea and shore, golf links, motor trips over fine roads, the best of hotels and plenty of them; high-class theatres with first-class attractions the summer through; stores that parallel those of any city; the military reservation at the Presidio; the naval and military stations at Mare Island and on the islets of the bay. It is so readily the hub of a trip to famous resorts of the Road of a Thousand Wonders—to Lake Tahoe—Mount Shasta—Santa Cruz—Paso Robles Hot Springs—Yosemite Valley that many visitors hold San Francisco as their center of comfort from which they radiate towards other favorite excursion points.

Sunset Magazine

For June is devoted to the Southwest and Mexico

Its leading article entitled

THE LAND OF TOMORROW, by Charles Sedgwick Aiken, the Editor of SUNSET, is descriptive of the West Coast of Mexico, the inhabitants and their habits and what the construction of Railroads is doing towards the development of this vast wonderland.

THE USEFUL COLORADO. Under this head Louella Prouty Littlepage writes of the Completion of the Laguna Dam in the Colorado River near Yuma, Arizona.

THE HETCH-HETCHY PROBLEM, by John P. Young, is a very interesting article on the proposed water supply of San Francisco.

“AND THEN WHAT NEXT?” is the title of a lecture given at the University of California, Berkeley, Cal., by the Right Honorable James Brice, O. M., British Ambassador to the United States, on the beauties and material development of California and the West in general and the importance of colleges of agriculture. Besides the above articles, the June number of SUNSET contains several western stories by well known writers and poems by Western poets.
