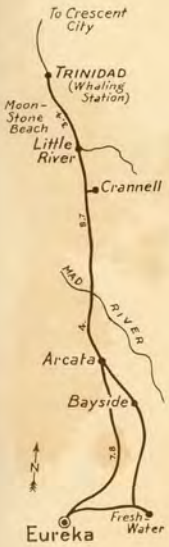
Trinidad Coast.

Giant Redwoods.



Arcata, Moonstone Beach, Trinidad, and Whaling Station.

THE Redwood Highway from Eureka to Trinidad, 24 miles, combines matchless marine views with woodland scenery. It was at Trinidad that the first explorers landed---on Trinity Sunday, 1775---the spot now being marked by a granite cross. From Trinidad the hardy whalers still go "down to the sea in ships" and the Whaling Station is of unique interest. The lofty lighthouse, on the bluffs high above the breakers, can also be visited.

On the journey north to Trinidad you will see Arcata and the State Teachers' College; and at Crannell witness extensive lumbering operations. Moonstone Beach, Mad River, and Little River are notable features along the route.

The return from Arcata can be made over the fine scenic drive by way of Bayside and Freshwater.

Trinidad, Big Lagoon, Agate Beach, Orick, and Requa.

ON the run northward from Trinidad along the Redwood Highway, some of the grandest coast scenery in America is viewed. Skirting the placid waters of Big Lagoon and Stone Lagoon, passing famed Agate Beach, the route extends to Orick at the mouth of Redwood Creek. Nearby stands the majestic Russ Grove, recently dedicated as a memorial to the Pioneers. Requa, 23 miles beyond Orick, is at the confluence of the Klamath River with the ocean.

If you wish, you can continue from here onward over the Redwood Highway to Crescent City and thence to Grant's Pass in Oregon.

From Eureka to Requa and return is an exhilarating and leisurely two-days trip. You may camp in the Redwoods over night, or stay at one of the excellent Inns along the route.

Fishing near Fernbridge.

Trout, Salmon, and Steelhead Fishing in Eel River.

DURING the summer and fall, fishing in the Eel River is unexcelled. Trout, quinnat salmon and steelhead---some of the gamest of finny fighters---abound in these waters. Famous pools are at Weymouth Inn, Fernbridge, below Loleta near Fortuna and at the mouth of the Van Duzen. The steelhead average from 1 to 15 pounds in weight, and some are caught weighing 25 pounds.

Humboldt County has 800 miles of trout streams, among the finest being the Van Duzen River and Yager Creek, shown on the map.

Boats for trolling or fly-casting may be rented near Loleta, at Fernbridge, at Weymouth Inn and other Eel River points. For information on the best fishing places, consult the Information Bureau of the Eureka Chamber of Commerce.

Redwoods at Dyerville.

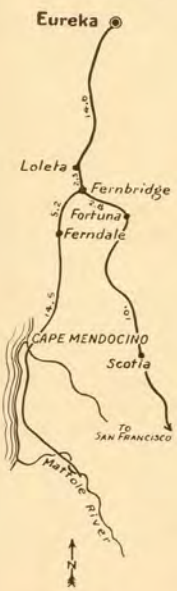
Dyerville, Bull Creek State Redwood Park.

AMONG the most famous groves of Redwoods are those at Dyerville Flat and Bull Creek Flat, 46 miles south of Eureka. In the Bull Creek grove towers the tallest of all Redwood trees---400 feet in height and 62 feet in circumference---noted for its symmetry as well as for its gigantic size.

Humboldt State Redwood Park extends along the highway for 14 miles between Dyerville and Kettintelbe (Phillipsville). Within this reserve is Bolling Memorial Grove on the South Fork of the Eel River.

Canoeing, fishing, and swimming in the Eel River and its tributaries, and camping in the Redwoods will make your summer's outing ever memorable.

South Fork of Eel River near Garberville.



Loleta, Ferndale, Fortuna, Scotia, Redwood Lumbering.

SCOTIA, one of the principal factors of Humboldt's giant Redwood lumbering industry, is 30 miles south of Eureka on the paved Redwood Highway. Visitors here have the opportunity to go through two of the largest and most modern lumber mills.

On the route there are notable features: Loleta, with the milk condensing and can-manufacturing plant of Libby, McNeill and Libby; the progressive city of Fortuna, where you can visit nearby Carson Woods, Scotia Bluffs and Canyon Park, between Fortuna and Scotia.

At Fernbridge, turn off for a 5-mile side trip to Ferndale, "Cream City of the Pacific." South of here a road leads to Cape Mendocino, westmost point in California, and beyond is the lovely Mattole Valley.

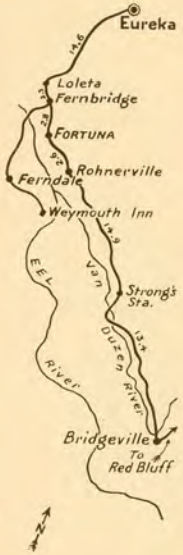
In the Redwoods.



Hydesville, Carlotta, Strong's Station, Van Duzen River.

ONE of the most diversified drives in northwestern California leads from Eureka through Fortuna and up the Van Duzen River. You can visit Carson Woods at Fortuna, wander in the flower farms at Rohnerville, watch the lumbering operations at Newberg, eat cherries at Carlotta---a varied journey, truly. At Strong's Station you may camp amidst the Redwoods and angle in the Van Duzen. Up the river you will motor to Bridgeville, and thence, if you wish, cross Trinity National Forest to Red Bluff in the upper Sacramento Valley.

The highway is paved to Fortuna and from there onward is a good gravel road. Along the route you will find excellent Inns with hotel accommodations.

EUREKA

THE METROPOLIS of Northwestern California is EUREKA, an enterprising up-to-date city of 20,000 inhabitants. Occupying a strategic location on Humboldt Bay, on the Redwood Highway and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad, EUREKA is 292 miles north of San Francisco. It is the westmost city in the United States.

EUREKA has modern business establishments, stores, hotels, and theatres. Sequoia Park, with its magnificent Redwoods, is the city's outdoor playground; and on Humboldt Hill, 15 minutes drive to the south, is the course of the Humboldt Golf and Country Club.

EUREKA'S Auto Park, leased and operated by the Eureka Chamber of Commerce, is used by thousands of tourists every year. It has hot and cold water, shower baths, sanitary plumbing, laundry facilities, kitchens with gas stoves, community center building---altogether the best equipped and best-managed auto camp in the West. You can make it your point of departure when you take the trips outlined in this folder.

The Eureka Inn (built by the community at a cost of more than $300,000), Hotel Vance, and other comfortable hotels serve as headquarters for travelers.

You will enjoy your stay in EUREKA. It is the coolest summer city in the country, with an average temperature of 56 degrees --- and the thermometer has never climbed over 86 degrees.

Come to EUREKA this year via the Redwood Highway Stages operating over the entire Redwood Highway and its laterals; via the Northwestern Pacific Railway, running from Sausalito to Eureka; or via your own automobile---take these 8 trips and the other innumerable outing excursions in Northwestern California.
